

As we continued skyward, sun-drenched vineyards speckled over the volcanic-rich soil. It was there, far below, where a friendly winemaker suggested his most cherished vintage, an international winner from '90. It was perfect. And right upon that ruby-rose crest we paused, for we arrived upon a place like no other. We arrived in wine country.